Abstract

This study investigates the perceptions of scholars concerning transgender people's legal status on their Hajj ritual validity. In North Sulawesi, seven scholars are considered the opinion-makers and authorities following their understanding of Hajj ritual procedures in Islamic law. The data were analyzed using qualitative methods through interviews and the needs theory by al-Shāṭibī, Ibn Khaldun, and Maslow. The results showed that the gender status of those yet to transition remains original. In contrast, the transitioning transgender people's status should change to the original law following the court's decision. Second, the scholars approved Hajj rituals for those yet to transition because they had their actual gender and sex. Furthermore, Hajj rituals for transgender people were also legally acceptable in Islamic law following the new status exception by the court. Finally, this article reveals that hajj rituals for transgender people are valid based on their initial gender or the court's decision. The hajj practices are invalid for those who illegally transition or without court approval.

Introduction

Transgender people face endless critics from society,<sup>1</sup> especially on their religious standing. The human anatomy classification is categorized by modern science as male, female, true hermaphrodites, and pseudo hermaphrodites. In contrast, the law follows the scientific gender binary classification as male or female. However, the Islamic jurisprudence on hermaphrodites contradicts science and Islamic law.<sup>2</sup> Therefore, the traditional Islamic law approach to hermaphrodites' management is challenged by medicine.

According to Quranic verses, humans were created as male or female (QS. 92:3).<sup>3</sup> The Qur'an only mentions male or female genders,<sup>4</sup> but hermaphrodites exist as male and female. The hermaphrodite phenomenon explains that Allah bestows males and females to whomever He wills (QS. 42:50).<sup>5</sup> Ibn al-'Arabi stated that hermaphrodites exist and are bound by a law differently from other genders. However, they are given the law for males or females when included in different genders.<sup>6</sup>

Scholars define hermaphrodites as khunsa, meaning two genitals or neither male nor female. The al-Kasani argued that an individual could not be both genders simultaneously.<sup>7</sup> However, some males feel, act, dress, and behave as females, known as waria<sup>8</sup> in Indonesian<sup>9</sup> or mukhannas by scholars. Females who feel, act, and dress like a male, are known as tomboi in Indonesian<sup>10</sup> or mutarajjilah by scholars.

Transgender people experience social, legal, and religious challenges. Craig et al. stated that social challenges include discrimination and marginalization, specifically in finding a job.<sup>11</sup> The legal aspect involves transgender people who die of HIV/AIDS<sup>12</sup> cannot be buried due to a lack of an Identity Card.

Therefore, scholars named them khunsa musykil (people whose gender is difficult to determine), showing their challenges in fiqh, because the Qur'an only recognizes males and females (QS. 53:45).<sup>13</sup>

The transgender people's religious challenges include leading prayers, inheritance distribution, marriage, and Islamic provisions of Hajj ritual. Following Hajj rituals, the Ministry of Religion dispatches transgender Hajj regardless of sex transition. The Integrated Hajj Information and Computerized System (SISKOHAT)<sup>14</sup> states that transgender people yet to undergo sex reassignment surgery are valid for Hajj. Following this, 42-year-old Sutika bin Marwapi from Cangkring Baru, Jenggawah, Jember, East Java performed Hajj with Kloter 69/Jember on October 15, 2012. Similary, 52-year-old Sutrisnawati from Kunir, Jatimulyo, Lumajang, East Java, performed Hajj in Mecca with Kloter 58/Lumajang on September 1, 2016. Lastly, 50-year-old Ari bin Hadi from Kolaka, Southeast Sulawesi, performed his fourth Hajj in Mecca in 2018. Furthermore, all three had physical and natural female characteristics.

An Indonesian Hajj officer in Armina's work area reported that Dorce Gamalama performed sex reassignment surgery with female status and performed Hajj in 1990, 1991, and 2005. In the same year, 1,426 Hajj pilgrims, including 649 Indonesians, died in a stampede at the Haratul Lisan tunnel, Mina.<sup>15</sup> Furthermore, North Sulawesi had not performed Hajj rituals for transgender people until 2019.

There are few studies on the transgender Hajj conception and rituals by North Sulawesi scholars. Nevertheless, research only focuses on gender identity, freedom, health, genetics, and Islamic law.

Pitaloka investigated gender identity contestation in heterosexist countries,<sup>16</sup> focusing on LGBT in Indonesian mass media. They stated that marginalized agenda and social exclusion of sex and non-heterosexual gender are considered normal. This condition is shown by analyzing the government elites that politicize heterosexist gender identity through sex, gender, and institution following national narratives and state regulations. The state views gender identity as defining oneself inwardly and outwardly through discourse and action. Hutami stated that other parties pressure transgender people through public discourse on gender boundaries.<sup>17</sup> It showed that they use gender attributes to free their bodies and souls from gender constraints. Helti, on the health perspective of transgender people classified as waria (shemale), stated that most were infected by HIV/AIDS (human immune virus/acquired immune deficiency syndrome) due to multiple sex partners.<sup>18</sup> Suparti also argued that the transgender phenomenon impacts sexuality and all life aspects.<sup>19</sup>

Previous studies avoid the Islamic religious approach to transgender people. However, Kholis examined the Islamic law humanism perspective on transgender people, stating that fiqh literature focused on external physical reviews and used literal-practical meanings referring to waria as khunsa. The males that resemble the opposite gender are known as mutasyabbih, which violates nature and is cursed.<sup>20</sup> Furthermore, fiqh is inconsistent with the waria identity, sometimes, it is identified as female, male, half male, and half female. Previous studies showed that transvestites are born that way (mukhannas min asl al-khilqah) and are not cursed in some fiqh schools. This thought is supported by the Liberal Islam Network (JIL) and Krisdianto, which states that society should recognize human beings' existence and freedom in sexual orientation choices and the LGBT community. According to Krisdianto, the JIL support of the LGBT existence and human rights freedom is based on religious arguments interpreted as contemporary historical science, psychology, and phenomenology.<sup>21</sup> This study differs from previous ones but focuses on a similar object (transgender). Previous studies neither focus on Hajj conception and rituals for transgender people by North Sulawesi scholars nor explore different locations and scholars.

The purpose of this study was to analyze the views of North Sulawesi scholars regarding the validity status and rituals of the Hajj performed by transgender actors. Furthermore, this study offers a foundation for transgender people to perform Hajj from the North Sulawesi scholars' perspective aside from other literature and philosophies. This research is essential because the pilgrimage is related to Islamic obligations for those who can afford it. Meanwhile, transgender actors, considered deviant from religion, also participate in the Hajj. Therefore, it is necessary to find a way out according to religious guidance so that transgender actors can also carry out the pilgrimage like Muslims in general.

The data were analyzed using a qualitative approach with interview techniques. Seven North Sulawesi scholars were interviewed on transgenders' Hajj conception and rituals in Indonesia. The scholars included Habib Muhsin Bilfaqih, K.H. Abdul Wahab Abdul Ghafur (Chairman of Indonesian Ulema Council (MUI) North Sulawesi), Salma Mursyid (Dean of the Sharia Faculty, IAIN Manado), K.H. Abdurrahman Mahrus, K.H. Yaser Bachmid (Vice Chairman of MUI Manado City), K.H. Abdurrahman Latukau (Vice Chairman of MUI North Sulawesi), and K.H. Mashar Kinontoa (Chairman of MUI Manado). These informants were selected to provide their views and thoughts regarding the validity status and practices of Hajj for transgender actors, considering that they have the capacity and authority in this matter. The Hajj is related to the obligations of Muslims to those who can carry it out. Scholars as people who understand Islamic law, especially those related to the validity and rituals of Hajj, are considered appropriate to be research informants. In addition, scholars have the capacity and authority to issue fatwas related to religious issues, including those related to Hajj which are obligatory for Muslims who can carry them out.

Only those who have not experienced sex reassignment surgery perform Hajj rituals following the Integrated Hajj Information and Computerization System (SISKOHAT) of the Ministry of Religion. Furthermore, Dorce Gamalama performed sex reassignment surgery with female status. Several classical scholars' opinions were used in addition to the interviews as a primary source, such as al-Tabarī (d. 923 AD), Imam al-Nawawi (d. 1277 AD), Ibn Taimiyah (d. 1328 AD), al-Zahabi (d. 1348 AD), al-Iraqi (d. 1403 AD), al-'Asqalani (d. 1449 AD), al-Haitamiy (d. 1566 AD), al-Munawi (d. 1621 AD), al-Syarwani, al-Bahutī (d. 1641 AD), and others. The data sources also included books, journals, and other relevant online literature.

The data analysis applied the needs theory from al-Shāṭibī, Ibn Khaldun, and Maslow. According to al-Shāṭibī (d. 338<sup>33</sup> AD), there are three basic human needs, darūriyah (primary needs), hājiyah (secondary needs), and tahsiniyah (tertiary needs).<sup>22</sup> Ibn Khaldun (d. 1406 AD) stated that basic human needs consist of ma'asyan (primary needs) and riyasyan (complementary needs). Furthermore, Ma'asyan reflects darūriyah and hājiyah level needs, whereas riyasyan represents external needs of darūriyah and hājiyah.<sup>23</sup> Maslow reconstructed<sup>32</sup> the theory (d. 1970 A.D.) by dividing basic human needs into physiological, safety, social, esteem, and self-actualization. According to Maslow, social needs reflect a sense of belonging.<sup>24</sup> Transgender people considered "unsettling" should follow society's life pattern, including Hajj, to be accepted.

The data analysis involves the reduction, display, and conclusion drawn. This study uses descriptive analysis to compare Hajj rituals performance for transgender people with the scholars' opinions.

Hajj: Conception and Ritual

Hajj means 'intention' or 'desire'. It is synonymous with al-qasdu, "deliberately doing something,"<sup>25</sup> which describes the intentional visit to the Ka'bah to interpret and perform acts of worship and pray.<sup>26</sup> In paragraph 3 of Article 1 in 2019 Law no. 8, "Hajj worship" is defined as Islam's fifth pillar required by Muslims following the Prophet's hadith.<sup>27</sup>

Hajj performance provisions follow the understanding and mastery of Hajj fiqh to determine the validity. The first stage involves the legal basis, Hajj is an obligation for those capable

(Qur'an 3:97).<sup>28</sup> Second, the obligatory requirements include Islam, taklif (baligh and reasonable), independence, and istithā'ah (capable).<sup>29</sup> According to Ibn Qudamah, the scholars unanimously determined the conditions.<sup>30</sup> The conditions for performing Hajj include<sup>31</sup> financial capability, security guarantee (life and property), physical health, and women accompanied by their husbands (mahram)<sup>32</sup> or in a group.<sup>33</sup> The third stage shows Hajj validity criteria as Islam, mumayiz (adults/baligh), miqat Zamani (Hajj is performed in the month of Syawwal, Zulkaidah, and the first ten days of the month of Zulhijah according to most companions and scholars), and miqat Makani (the pillars and obligatory Hajj implementation at the designated place, wukuf at Arafah (stay at arafah), tawaf at the Ka'bah, and sa'i between Šafa and Marwah).<sup>34</sup>

The fourth stage involves Hajj rituals performance. The scholars agreed that Hajj is performed by the selected ritual out of the three, ifrad, qiran, and tamattu'.<sup>35</sup> However, the scholars had different views on the primary type of Hajj because the Messenger of Allah had only one ritual. Fifth, Hajj pillars include ihram (intention to perform Hajj), wuquf at Arafah<sup>36</sup> (present in

The Existence and Religious Practice of Transgender

Transgender consists of 'trans' means transverse; cross; penetrate, or through,<sup>50</sup> while 'gender' means sex or gender.<sup>51</sup> Gender is interpreted as a trait or character related to the socially and culturally constructed sexes.<sup>52</sup> The Ministry of Women's Empowerment defines gender following the community roles. These roles are learned, changed, and vary within and between cultures. In contrast to sex (the biological difference between male and female), gender refers to learned behavior, societal expectations, and masculinity and femininity differences.

Furthermore, sex identity is determined by genetic and anatomical characteristics,<sup>53</sup> whereas traits, attitudes, and behavior determine gender identity.<sup>54</sup> The difference distorts the meaning where gender is misinterpreted as sex. However, some people do not identify with any societal gender and change their preferred identity.

Transgender is defined as psychological and socio-cultural aspects because one is born male or female. It can also be interpreted as a person whose identity does not match the expected female or male status.<sup>55</sup> Therefore, transgender represents those without sexual orientation. A male transgender person has normal sex anatomy but psychologically feels like a woman. They have stiff male physiques but walk, talk and dress as females. According to Nadia, transgender people are also referred to as transvestic.<sup>56</sup> Therefore, they are people whose traits, attitudes, and behavior cross their gender, including single or multiple-sex or no gender.

Based on the fiqh perspective, transgender people or hermaphrodites are known as khunsa, which means to glow and fade.<sup>57</sup> In contrast, shemale/wadam are referred to as mukhannas and tomboys as mutarajjilah. Therefore, there are two types of transgender people, hermaphrodites (khunsa) and shemale (mukhannas) or tomboys (mutarajjilah).

Scholars define hermaphrodites as khunsa, meaning those with two genitals, male and female, or without genitals, neither male nor female. The Messenger of Allah laid the foundations to handle khunsa challenges, such as inheritance based on "where does he urinate."<sup>58</sup> According to al-Suyuti (d. 1505 AD), scholars divide khunsa into two, khunsa musykil

Al-Qur'an surah al-Hajj verse 5 discusses mukhannas/mutarajjalah, in the editorial verse mudgah mukhallaqah wa gairi mukhallaqah (a lump of perfect and imperfect flesh).<sup>60</sup> Al-Ṭabari (d. 923 AD) interpreted mukhallaqah as a person born perfect with all organs, whereas gairi mukhallaqah means someone born incomplete or died in the womb.<sup>61</sup> According to Ibn Kasīr (d. 1373 AD), mukhallaqah occurs at the fourth fetus stage, known as the change of 'alaqah (clot of blood) to mudgah (clot of flesh). In contrast, the gairi mukhallaqah fetus leaves the womb through blood (dam) before its fourth stage.<sup>62</sup> The meaning of this interpretation is indicated in the Quranic verses related to "mudgah mukhallaqah wa gairi mukhallaqah. It means that the zygote combination, when it fails to separate the male or female chromosomes, results in a combination of chromosomes XXY, XXX, XYY,<sup>63</sup> or hormonal occurrence,<sup>64</sup> sex anatomy abnormalities<sup>65</sup> found in transsexuals, transgender people, and hermaphrodites (ambiguous genitalia).

The transgender phenomenon is caused by intrinsic factors (hormones and genes) and environmental.<sup>66</sup> Generally, the determining factors for the transgender decision include chromosomal, neuropsychological, and hormonal. In contrast, Febrya and Elmirawati suggested various determinants for the LGBT community, including family, social and environmental, biology, morals and character, and weak religious knowledge.<sup>67</sup>

Therefore, mosque visits are challenging for transgender people, and they prefer to pray at home.<sup>68</sup> This condition is in line with an argument that allows this situation and triggers public fear instead of protecting the minority groups.

In other cases, an Islamic boarding school for transgender people emerges in Yogyakarta due to the challenge of worshiping in public mosques. The Al-Fatah Transgender Islamic Boarding School is the only school dedicated to transgender people globally and a haven following the Indonesian crackdown on LGBT rights.<sup>69</sup>

Islam regulates that prayer, zakat, and other primary rituals are obligatory for Muslims, even for transgender people. However, neither women wearing mukena (prayer veiling) for women nor a cap and sarong for men during prayers are not implicitly regulated. Therefore, the worship procedures are within Islamic law, and the differences depend on context. In Indonesia, worshipers should wear a mukena and covered clothes, whereas, in Turkey, they can pray in any clothing. There are different ways of worship following the Qur'an, "Everyone acts according to their circumstances, and Allah knows best who is right in the way (QS. 17:84).<sup>70</sup> In clothing and prayer procedures, caps and mukena are not part of valid prayer conditions. Therefore, using a cap for Muslims is cultural and not a religious ritual. In Islam, the benchmark covers the genitals; hence, when a man wears a mukena, his prayer is valid because his aurat is covered. Similarly, the hadith states, "Indeed Allah does not look at your appearance and wealth, but looks at your heart and deeds" (HR. Muslim, no. 2564).<sup>71</sup> Therefore, transgender worship is not judged by their dressing during prayers but by their sincerity.

Based on transgender people and their ambiguous legal status, Gibtiah advised:<sup>72</sup> that they should not be a maknum (congregation) behind its other members or women, be marriage guardians, counted in Friday prayers, 40 of them in one place should not offer Friday prayers, not become judges/priests, be circumcised, and others should not bathe their corpses except their relatives. Furthermore, when their menstruation is abnormal, they should not perform Itikaf in mosques, have sexual relations, and take a bath during the obligatory prayers. They also should not marry other transgender people without clear legal status.

When gender identity discussions are based on the physical-biological issue, the social perspective should be considered. It states that gender identity focuses on the non-physical, psychology, attitude, and behavior. The worship perspective views it as a physical-biological issue, meaning gender from birth. The transgender people, mukhannas/mutarajjalah, live as the opposite sex due to psychological dissatisfaction with their biological anatomy, but they are identified as male or female in religious discourse.

The perspective of North Sulawesi Scholars against Transgender

The scholars agreed that transgender people are created in an "imperfect" state with gender abnormalities in their nature, attitude, and behavior. Based on the fiqh perspective, transgender people are divided into khunsa and mukhannas or mutarajjilah. There are two types of Khunsa, gairu musykil (clear) and musykil (vague). Al-Nawawi categorized mukhannas or mutarajjilah into two, min khalqin (natural) and bi takallufin (occurs not outside/because it is affected). In contrast, al-'Asqalani refers to min aṣli al-khilqah (created from birth) and bi al-qasdi (deliberately behaving and speaking such a woman or a man).

The following are the classical scholars' perspectives on the transgender category of mukhannas or mutarajjilah.

No.	Scholars	Opinion
1.	al-Ṭabarī (d. 923 AD)	Men are prohibited from resembling women in behavior and characteristic, including their bodies and ways of speaking. <sup>73</sup>
2.	al-Nawawi (d. 1277 AD)	Mukhannas is divided into two. First, those born as mukhannas do not behave, dress, speak, and move like such women. Therefore, they are not reprehensible and sinful, without defects, and cannot be punished because they are among the ma'zūr . Second, those who intentionally behave such women in movements, silence, speech, and clothing are cursed in the hadith. <sup>74</sup>

5. al-Iraqi (d. 1403 AD),	Some men who resemble women in body movements and speech styles are congenital or not artificial, whereas some are artificial or not congenital. The first group is without sin and sanctions because it is ' uzur ' and natural. In contrast, the second group is reprehensible and condemned in the authentic hadiths. <sup>77</sup>
6. al-'Asqalani (d. 1449 AD)	Prophet Muhammad's curse and reproach are for those who deliberately imitate the opposite gender. When it is an innate two sex for people, one of two is ordered to stop it gradually. Some scholars stated that natural mukhannas are not reprehensible or sinful. These are people who cannot stop speaking softly and with graceful movements. However, those who control though gradual are sinful when performed without ' uzur '. <sup>78</sup>

Table 1. Classical Scholars' Perspective on Transgender (Mukhannas/Mutarajjilah)

On khunsa legal status, classical and North Sulawesi scholars agreed on the standards and criteria for determining gender and legal status when classified as khunsa musykil. Therefore, the scholars had similar perspectives on determining legal status and related matters as clear even though khunsa is categorized as transgender. In contrast, classical and contemporary scholars have debated the legal status of mukhannas or mutarajjilah. The debate on the legal status determination for this category has implications in various aspects, including worship, specifically on Hajj rituals.

This is because males and females sometimes have another spirit, hence, one may be physically male with a female spirit or vice versa. Mutasabihat (verses with vague meanings) should be fatabayyana, cross-checking whether khunsa is concrete because the mutasyabihat verses contain the secret meaning of humanity. In conclusion, viewing men and women with physical features is already muhkamat (obviously). Therefore, to assess whether a human is driven to a male or female spirit, one can refer to Ali Shariati's opinion on cross-checking khunsa personally and secretly on their lustful tendencies. Dominant males and females are given the law as men and women after they perform Hajj. For mukhannas/mutarajjilah who change their genitals, their legal status follows the court's decision after conducting fatabayyanu and medical proof. 3.	Salma Mursyid	One of the transgender definitions is someone who identifies as a different gender. Based on the Director-General of Hajj, waria who are indeed transvestites are given the law as women. On the other side, waria , those who change their appearance periodically, are given the law as men. <sup>85</sup>
4.	K.H. Abdurrahman Mahrus	According to Al-Syaukani in the book Nail al-Ausar , mukhannas existence during Prophet Muhammad's time was intolerable. They were exiled from the community and only came regularly for necessities. In Islam, one becomes such them when associating with mukhannas/mutarajjilah for 40 days. Currently, there are men resembling women or vice versa, referred to as mal'un (cursed by the Prophet Muhammad).

Changing gender differently from khunsa is compared to changing God's creation, and the law is haram. Therefore, the law for mukhannas/mutarajjilah with sex reassignment surgery is haram, and their legal status remains regardless of the court ruling. When they perform Hajj, they retain their gender from birth. Therefore, according to religious rules, they should perform Hajj as a male.<sup>86</sup>

Table 2. North Sulawesi Scholars' Perspective on Transgender (Mukhannas/Mutarajjilah)

The task of the Scholars is to direct and foster Muslims in instilling the Islamic faith and enforcing Islamic law to create a quality society (khayr ummah).<sup>90</sup> Initially, all scholars forbade transgender behavior except those innate from birth, such as body movements and speech styles that are uncontrollable or tabi'i (talkative) in al-Iraqi's perspective.<sup>91</sup> The dressing, sexual behavior, and others are excluded because they are controllable.

The 7 North Sulawesi scholars' perspectives on transgender mukhannas/mutarajjilah categories were divided into two groups. The first group, Habib Muhsin Bilfaqih, K.H. Abdurrahman Latukau, K.H. Mashar Kinontoa, and Salma Mursyid, considered the real waria (min khalqin/min aslı al-khilqah) are given the law as women. In contrast, waria who is bi takallufin/bi al-qasdi are given the law as men. The second group, K.H. Abdul Wahab Abdul Ghafur, K.H. Abdurrahman Mahrus, and K.H. Yaser Bachmid, argued the legal status of mukhannas and mutarajjilah returns to the original law, namely, where urine comes out (genital). The second group forbade transgender people to perform sex reassignment surgery regardless of the court ruling.

Table 3. North Sulawesi Scholars' Perspective on the Legal Status of Transgender

Some North Sulawesi scholars adhered to the classical scholars' opinion that transgender legal status in the mukhannas/mutarajjilah category before surgery returns to the original law. However, the others considered that the legal status of mukhannas/mutarajjilah with sex reassignment surgery follows the new status per the court.

Hajj Ritual Law for Transgender

Based on the scholars' opinions on the theoretical foundations of Hajj, the rituals for prospective male and female pilgrims are 90% similar. However, there are different rituals for males and females. First, the female muhrim must be accompanied by her husband or mahram, while the male muhrim does not need a companion. One of the valid Hajj conditions for women is to be accompanied by the husband, a mahram, or a group based on the Prophet Muhammad's hadith narrated by Bukhārī.<sup>92</sup> Therefore, the Shafi'i school obliges women to perform Hajj as a trusted group.<sup>93</sup> Second, male's ihram clothes are different from female's. One of the ihram obligations is to avoid sewn clothes. Men should not wear clothes, robes, coats, Imamat, head coverings, khuf/shoes (unless they do not find khuf).

In contrast, women should not wear face-covering (niqab) and gloves.<sup>94</sup> Third, the validity status of ablution for pilgrims. Shafi'i scholars in Indonesia tolerate skin-to-skin contact from the congregations crowd during tawaf.

Male and female congregations crowding during tawaf can be considered an emergency. Therefore, the Shafi'i school adherents in contact with non-mahram (ajnabiyyah) members of the opposite sex (ajnabiyyah) during tawaf can ignore it and continue without breaking wudu'. To determine the transgender position in Hajj rituals implementation similar to Sutika, Sutrisnawati, Ari bin Hadi, and Dorce Gamalama, it should consider the three discussed conditions based on the North Sulawesi scholars.

Table 4. Hajj Rituals, Transgender (Case: Sutika, Sutrisnawati, Ari bin Hadi, and Dorce Gamalama)

abbreviation: O=Obligated | NO=Not Obligated | M=Male | F=Female | V=Valid | I=Invalid

Most North Sulawesi scholars stated that Hajj rituals for Sutika bin Marwati, Sutrisnawati, and Ari bin Hadi were valid, including Dorce Gamalama.

The results showed that from a fiqh perspective, the transgender Hajj validity is being clean (fulfilling the conditions and in harmony) and green (sincere and solemn for the sake of Allah). One should not be hindered for the worship practices because "everyone acts according to their own circumstances."<sup>95</sup> Therefore, Allah knows best who has the correct way (QS. 17:84).<sup>96</sup> Through worship, a person is cleansed from sin or gets teaching that benefits them (QS. 80:1-4).<sup>97</sup>

Conclusion

Based on the results and discussion, this article finds several views of North Sulawesi scholars on the concept of Hajj, especially for transgender actors. Most North Sulawesi scholars considered that transgender status (mukhannas/mutarajilah) without sex reassignment surgery have their legal status back to the original law and gender assigned at birth. They ruled that the legal status of those who had surgery following court decisions should return to their original law. Therefore, their new legal status was determined by the court. Most scholars agreed that Hajj ritual practices for those without surgery were valid because they had their original gender. The court determined the ritual validity for those who had surgery on their new status. The scholars ruled that those with sex reassignment surgery against the court ruling and who performed Hajj rituals with their new status were invalid.
